PADDY TELLS OF OSCAR JOY

Lyric stalwart's 'whirlwind few days' after An Irish Goodbye takes Hollywood award glory

BY CONOR MCPARLAND

LYRIC Theatre regular Paddy Jenkins has been speaking of his delight after the short film

An Irish Goodbye claimed Oscar glory in Hollywood.

The Finaghy actor – a familiar face on stage and screen – played Father O'Shea in the funny and moving short film telling the story of two brothers coming to terms with each other after a family death.

“On Sunday night, I went to my son’s house. He converted his garage into a bar so it was a great night,” Paddy told the South Belfast News this week.

“I was actually at the toilet when my son shouted that it was about to be announced. The rest of the night was just mayhem.”

The Best Short Film Oscar is just the latest in a line of glittering accolades for the film.
